

We must keep the internet open to all as communication is a human right. Without net neutrality we will lose a part of our first amendment rights. This will also hurt millions of people's main source of income and a driving factor in the economy.